BUCKLES

These are some of the most interesting items to be found and date from Roman and medieval times to the present day. Many are tinned and this helps to preserve some of the earliest. Most are found without their pins which were often of iron and so do not survive, and many are very delicate and get broken up by ploughing. They were used in vast numbers, for buckling spurs, swords, breeches, cuffs, shoes and as hat decorations. Some of the Georgian ones are extremely ornate, and a few were produced in silver. By the latter part of the eighteenth century, the buckle industry in Birmingham was employing 4,000 people who produced 2,500,000 pairs of buckles annually at an average cost of two shillings and sixpence per pair, and most of these are either in the ground or in the sea !
